

Only The Lonely

Of Roy Orbison's first 15 top 40's hits, 6 were penned by the Orbison/Melson team. They included the breakthrough record Only The Lonely (Know How I Feel), which became #1 in Britain and #2 in America. (This record sold two million and established Orbison as the premier balladeer of the Kennedy years.) In Britain however, it didn't just top the charts but remained in the Top 40 for nearly 6 months. Only The Lonely is, of course, the song regarded by many as the starting point of Roy's classic ballad sound. Most of the hits that would follow before he left Monument in 1965, such as Running Scared, Crying, Dream Baby, In Dreams, and It's Over, contain a vivid combination of hurtful romantic longing combined with near operatic vocals that established Roy as a truly unique talent.
